

STUDIO INCAMMINATI IN YOUR TOWN

Form Painting with the Figure

Darren Kingsley

3rd Street Gallery / Carnegie, PA

March 21–25 • 9 a.m.–4 p.m.

Tuition $550

This workshop focuses on the principles essential to transform abstract flat shapes into fully dimensional form. Students will study the figure in a way which allows the translation of a 3 dimensional world into a 2 dimensional painting that conveys the fullest possible sculptural form.

Students will focus on painting the figure with a complete range of values and develop the ability to make accurate, relative value calibrations. The focus is on structure, anatomy, proportion, light direction, handling of edges, abstract movements through the figure, composition and an understanding of basic and complex forms of the figure.

These concepts are executed through an application of opaque and semi opaque paint in the light and shadow areas. Control of the paint is a priority and is essential to achieving the required goals. The class will be taught with a limited palette of colors to keep the emphasis on the development of form.

Guest Instructor and Studio Incamminati graduate Darren Kingsley's paintings hang in the collections of Lucasfilm Ltd., the film production company founded by Star Wars creator George Lucas, and The Union League of Philadelphia as well as numerous private collections.
